

Bibliography of Additional Suggested Readings

Job Hunting:

Mary Morris Heiberger and Julie Miller Vick, The Academic Job Search Handbook (3rd edition) (U. Penn Press, 2001) [I *loved* the first edition (1992) of this book when I was first job hunting -- lots of sensible, concrete, anxiety-quelling advice]

Publishing:

Bruce Thyer, Successful Publishing in Scholarly Journals, vol. 11 of Survival Skills for Scholars (Sage, 1994) Marcia Lynn Whicker, et al, Getting Tenure, vol. 8 of Survival Skills for Scholars (Sage, 1993) Christine Smedley, et al, Getting Your Book Published, vol. 10 of Survival Skills for Scholars (Sage, 1993) [all short, practical volumes, which in some ways state the obvious, but very helpful when you are stressing about what is -- or will later become -- obvious] [there may of course be more recent editions]

Teaching:

Barbara E. Walvoord, Effective Grading: A Tool for Learning and Assessment in College (Jossey-Bass, 2009) [the only recent text on my list, and *very highly recommended* despite the dry and dreadful sounding title -- she is terrific, and wise about teaching]
Wilbert J. McKeachie, McKeachie's Teaching Tips (Houghton Mifflin, 1999) [also may be more recent edition]

General:

Lynn Collins, et al, eds., Career Strategies for Women in Academe: Arming Athena (Sage, 1998) [edited volume with lots of interesting little pieces] Emily Toth, Ms. Mentor's Impeccable Advice for Women in Academia (U. Penn Press, 1997) [I seem to remember that this was sometimes snarkier than seemed helpful, but still, it is fun to read]
